

WALSAA on Sept 12: Always game for a Fire-Up

WALSAA's Football Fire-Up tailgate party and auction heads into its 40th year as alumni, faculty and friends gather before the 11 a.m. UW-Madison football game against University of Miami (Ohio). The Fire-Up starts at 8:30 a.m. at the UW Foundation building, 1848 University Avenue, Madison.

WALSAA annual and lifetime members will be able to purchase discounted tickets for this year's lunch and will have exclusive right to purchase football tickets again this year. Fire-Up 2015 will feature live music, a visit from Bucky Badger, a new game area for children and the popular WALSAA Silent Auction, which raises money for scholarships, awards and student activities. See some of the items on the auction block on page 6. Lunch menu plans include steak sandwich, potatoes ole, chips, veggies, salads, cheese, ice cream, beer, milk and soda.

WALSAA's annual meeting will be held at 8 a.m. prior to the Fire-Up Luncheon. Current WALSAA members and supporters are invited to attend. The primary order of business will be to elect board members and to recognize outgoing board members. If you have other items for the agenda, please forward them to Maria Woldt at admin@walsaa.org or Vern Dougherty, silent auction chairman, at vedo@me.com.

President's Message: Join me at our signature event

WALSAA President Sara Schoenborn

It's hard to believe the WALSAA Football Fire-Up is only a month away! Plans for this fantastic event are well underway and it is sure to be the highlight of our year. I hope to see all of you on Saturday, Sept. 12, as we welcome home Paul Chryst and cheer on the Badgers as they take on Miami of Ohio.

The fun will begin at 8:30 a.m. in the UW Foundation parking lot and once again feature music by The Soggy Prairie Boys.

We have an exciting new twist to this year's event – I am happy to announce we will be featuring Inaugural Red – the UW's Campus Craft Brewery and Wisconsin Brewing Company beer produced through a student-led initiative. If you haven't yet had the opportunity to try Inaugural Red, you will find it to be the perfect toast to Wisconsin's agricultural, food science and brewing industries. It certainly reflects what it means to be a CALS Badger.

Don't forget this event also serves as our annual meeting where we review any bylaw changes, show gratitude to retiring board members and welcome new board members to the WALSAA family.

It is also an opportunity for you to show your support of current CALS students through our phenomenal silent auction. A partial listing of the items available for this year is located on page 6.

Funds from the WALSAA Football Fire-Up silent auction are used to support our Outstanding Sophomore, FISC and Advisor Awards. We take pride in providing this recognition to CALS students and faculty and it truly isn't possible without your help.

Thank you for all that you do to support the college, its students and the alumni. I hope to be able to thank each of you in person on Sept. 12 for all that you do!

Campus Happenings

September is quickly approaching, and classes are already right around the corner. I am excited to start my senior year, and I look forward to another great year with WALSAA as a student representative.

I spent the summer as a marketing and communications intern for Geno, a dairy cattle breeding company in Norway. Throughout the summer I was challenged with many tasks that helped me learn through experience. My projects included developing the company's value proposition, producing customer testimonial videos and guest blogging for www.dairycrossbreeding.com. I particularly enjoyed spending time networking at the global conference sponsored by Geno. At the conference, I had time to meet and learn from representatives from our daughter companies and other partners.

In addition to my internship, I had time to travel around the Scandinavian countries and see a beautiful part of the world, from the fjords of Norway to the city square of Copenhagen. This experience helped me realize how much I value networking, because without support from my connections in the dairy industry, I would not have had this opportunity of a lifetime.

By Matt Olson, WALSAA Student Representative

Dean's Message: Our inspiring new grads

CALS Dean & Director Kate VandenBosch

One of the most gratifying aspects of my position as dean is the opportunity it gives me to interact with so many remarkable young people. They serve as a daily reminder of why our work at the college is so important – and how richly our faculty, staff, engaged alumni and partners throughout the state are “paid back” for the efforts we put into their education.

Commencement is the annual event that marks our students' launch into the wider world. I was particularly moved (but not at all surprised) to see that out of the “Top 15 of 2015” students whose achievements caught the attention of the university's news service – from a pool of more than 10,000 receiving degrees – seven of them came from CALS.

Here, briefly, are their stories:

- Biology major Kayla Sippi noticed, while interning at a hospital in Kianjokoma, Kenya, that patient bathrooms had no soap. Through a fellowship from the Morgridge Center for Public Service, Sippi established soap-making workshops for women in several Kenyan communities, and she was invited to discuss the project at the Clinton Global Initiative University.

- If you're an Amazing Race fan, you might already know Maya Warren, who won $1 million, shared with race partner and fellow food science PhD student Amy DeJong, on the CBS reality show. And you might see her on TV again. Warren, whose dissertation is on fat agglomeration, plans to develop and host a TV show about frozen desserts from around the world.

Maya Warren

- Want to see less Styrofoam in our landfills? So would biochemistry major Emily Baumann and wildlife ecology and environmental studies major Katelyn Budke, who spent their senior year creating UW Boxable, a Styrofoam recycling program. The project has been awarded $105,000 in grants from the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency, and Baumann and Budke helped launch similar programs at two other universities.

- We're all familiar with gardens for growing food and flowers – but what about gardens that are designed to aid healing? Such gardens provide a professional focus for landscape architecture major Lily Mank, who for her senior capstone developed a tranquil pace for patients with eating disorders, depression, OCD and anxiety.

Lily Mank

- It's hard to stand out as an exceptional scholar on a campus where the bar is set so high. But biochemistry major Rachel Dvorak, whose past honors include a WALSAA Outstanding Sophomore Award, was a finalist for the Marshall Scholarship, one of the nation's top awards in education. Biology major Alan Chen, who moved to Minoqua from China when he was in second grade, aspires to help others by becoming a doctor. His academic excellence, volunteerism and research earned him a scholarship from the Bascom Hill Society.

Alan Chen

While these students richly deserve their special place in the spotlight, please be assured that countless others have inspiring stories of their own. Collectively, their achievements stand as a testimonial to the value of our college.

As another school year approaches, I hope you feel inspired by our newest graduates. Your dedication and support helps ensure that this year's students, and our students in years to come, will continue to find CALS a nurturing, intellectually challenging place in which to learn, grow – and come out ready to make our world a better place.

On, Wisconsin!

FISC Corner: Preparations underway for 131st class

FISC Director Jessie Potterton

The UW Farm & Industry Short Course (FISC) program will welcome its 131st class to campus this November. For the 2015-16 academic year, 125 students applied and 104 students have been admitted to the program.

Of the admitted students:

- 70 percent will be working towards completion of their first year certificate;
- 19 percent reside outside the state of Wisconsin; other states represented include: Arkansas, Iowa, Illinois, Maine, Michigan, Minnesota, New York, Pennsylvania and Texas;
- 19 percent are female and 81 percent are male; and
- 82 percent have applied to live on campus.

Due to the continued generosity of the FISC donors, 100 percent of the FISC student body has been offered a scholarship for the 2015-16 academic year. FISC has awarded 96 scholarships for a total of nearly $102,000 to the incoming class. Scholarships range in size from $500 to $4,500. The average award size is slightly more than $1,000.

Five second year students will be representing the program as FISC Ambassadors. They will be meeting with prospective students throughout the year, attending events where they will discuss the opportunities in FISC with families, agriculture educators, alumni and other stakeholders, and providing the FISC administration with the student perspective on decisions related to the program. The five FISC Ambassadors for 2015-16 include:

- Troy Behrens, Hebron, Ill.
- Cody Stelse, Jefferson, Wis.
- Sarah Pate, Baraboo, Wis.
- Nicole Wright, Lake Mills, Wis.
- Meredith Ziller, Huntley, Ill.

Ambassadors have been supporting FISC recruitment efforts at a variety of events over the past year, including State FFA Convention, National FFA Convention, World Dairy Expo, Farm Technology Days, Wisconsin Association of Ag Educators Conference, WPS Farm Show, and several specific school visits. FISC also hosted nearly 80 students and families on campus during FISC Preview Days and individual visits.

Students will move into the dorms on Nov. 7 and 8, and courses will begin on Nov. 9. Students have a wide variety of course selection again this year, with courses offered in the fall, winter and spring terms. Specialty certificates offered this year include: Crops & Soils Management, Dairy Farm Management, Farm Mechanics, Farm Service & Supply, Meat Animals, and Pasture-Based Dairy/Livestock.

WALSAA Football Fire-Up volunteers wanted for Sept. 11 and 12

WALSAA is looking for those interested in fellowship through service to volunteer at its annual fundraising event. The WALSAA Football Fire-Up raises thousands of dollars each year for scholarships and that achievement wouldn't be possible without hard workers that help organize and work at the event.

This year a crew will begin event set-up at 6 p.m. on Friday, Sept. 11. Even more volunteers plan to arrive early on Saturday, Sept. 12, and a dedicated group will miss kick-off to be sure everything is cleaned up.

If you are interested in helping with the 40th annual WALSAA Football Fire-Up, please contact WALSAA at (608) 438-1994 or admin@walsaa.org for more details.

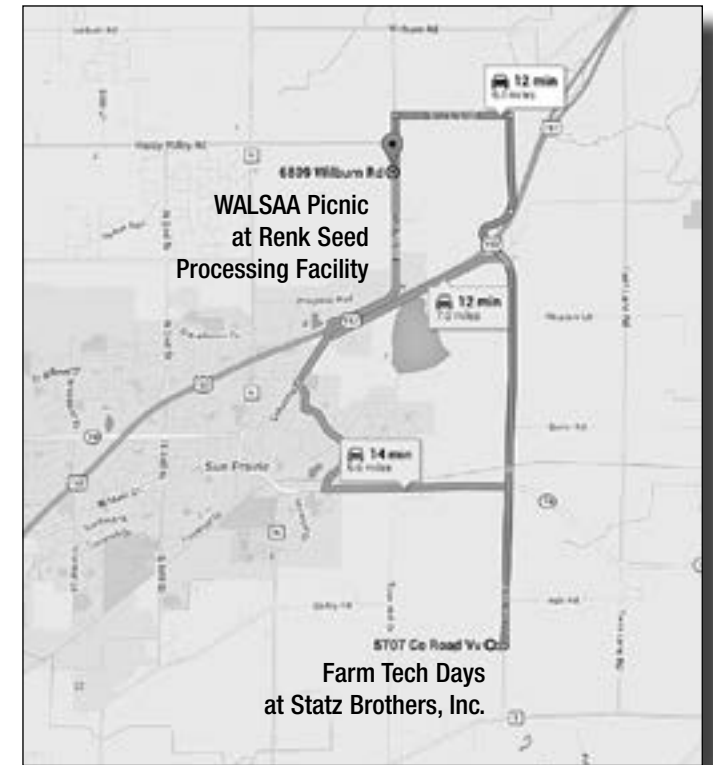

WALSAA Farm Technology Days Annual Picnic set for Aug. 26

UW-Madison's College of Agricultural and Life Sciences and Farm & Industry Short Course graduates are invited to attend the annual Wisconsin Agricultural and Life Sciences Alumni Association (WALSAA) Farm Technology Days Picnic. It will be held Wednesday, Aug. 26, from 3 to 7 p.m. at the Renk Seed Farm in Sun Prairie. After a day at the show, enjoy a barbecue dinner with your WALSAA friends!

Tours of the Renk Seed Processing Facility will be available as well as yard games for the whole family. Tickets for the event are just $20 per person. Large crowds are expected (and we have improved our meal choices), so please RSVP in advance at www.walsaa.org. Walk-ins will be accepted, but RSVPs are much appreciated!

The host of the 2015 Farm Technology Days in Dane County is Statz Brothers, Inc., which is located southeast of Sun Prairie on County Road VV. The WALSAA picnic site is located just 12 minutes north of the FTD site.

The Renk Seed Processing Facility address is 6809 Wilburn Road, Sun Prairie. The easiest way to get from FTD to the picnic site is to take County Road VV north crossing Hwy 151. Turn left on E. Branch Road and then the first left on to Wilburn Road. Signs will be posted to direct traffic from the show to the WALSAA picnic.

To participate in planning the WALSAA Farm Technology Days Picnic or volunteer to help the day of, contact WALSAA by emailing admin@walsaa.org or calling (608) 438-1994.

Have you thanked your favorite CALS professor?

Researchers say only 10 percent of happiness comes from external sources such as money or success. Here are four ways researchers suggest to improve personal happiness:

- 1 Think of three specific, new things you are grateful for each day.
- 2 Exercise! 15 minutes of exercise is as effective as an anti-depressant.

3 Take a breath. Just two minutes with your hands off of your keyboard watching your breath counts; you'll see your stress drop...and that of the people around you.

4 Conscious act of kindness. Write a two-minute email praising or thanking one person you know each morning. Start by thinking of a few of the CALS professors and staff who made a difference in your life. Go to www.wisc.edu/directories/ to find their contact information.

Member profile: Lori Ward Bocher

After receiving her bachelor's degree in dairy science in 1981, Lori Ward Bocher was an associate editor at Hoard's Dairyman. She then worked part-time as an agricultural freelance writer before taking on her current full-time role as an agricultural information specialist for the U.S. Dairy Forage Research Center and USDA Agricultural Research Service. She now resides in Evansville, Wis. Read on to learn more about Ward Bocher.

Why did you choose to enroll in CALS?

Both of my parents were UW alumni, it's a great university, and it was both far enough and close enough to home. The UW was my first and only choice. However, it took me a bit longer to find CALS. I started out at the School of Journalism because I wanted to be a newspaper reporter. My junior year I started taking CALS classes for my electives because I realized I might end up in agricultural communications, but it was too late to switch majors. After working for a marketing firm for two years, I realized that I wanted to know more about the science behind farming, so I worked on our family farm and returned to CALS to major in dairy science.

Did you receive any WALSAA or CALS scholarships?

I received a WALSAA scholarship when I participated in the Wisconsin Rural Leadership Program (now known as Leadership Wisconsin).

What student clubs or activities did you participate in while on campus?

Because I was a returning student and working three part-time jobs, I did not participate much in student organizations.

What one or two specific experiences did you have while a student that impacted your career?

1. Since my family farm was near Fort Atkinson, I already knew some of the editors at Hoard's Dairyman. When they learned that I was majoring in dairy science at the UW, they asked me if I'd be willing to write some articles about the great research being done in the department. I had the privilege of interviewing two of my professors, Neal Jorgensen and Bud Schultz, about metabolic disorders in dairy cattle; this turned into five articles for the magazine which were later reprinted in a booklet that received wide distribution. This had a huge impact on my career as I was later offered a job at Hoard's Dairyman. I may have done the writing, but the valuable information came from the UW researchers.

2. I will always remember one question on one test given by Dairy Science Professor Larry Satter. He asked, "The authors of your text book are affiliated with what universities?" I had no idea. When several students pro-tested this question, Dr. Satter had a logical response: You should always know the credentials/validity of the source for the information you use. This advice has served me well over the years, especially now with the plethora of information on the Internet.

What advice would you give to incoming freshmen?

The UW may seem large and impersonal, but CALS makes it seem much smaller and very personal.

Why do you think students and alumni should connect to the college through an alumni group such as WALSAA?

In general, it's important to give back to organizations that have had a positive impact on your life. More specifically, WALSAA's emphasis on student scholarships is an especially worthy goal to support now that college costs and student debt have risen so dramatically. I enjoyed serving on the WALSAA board for six years in the 1980s and 1990s.

What have you found to be most rewarding in your career or volunteer work?

As a communicator, knowing that I have helped people find information that will help improve their dairy farms, their lives and the environment.

What keeps you motivated and engaged in your current organizational role?

The fact that the research conducted at the U.S. Dairy Forage Research Center is aimed at finding ways to improve the economic and environmental sustainability of dairy farms across the U.S. I truly believe in this mission. Plant more perennial forages!

What is something you achieved in the last five years?

Now that our children are grown, my husband and I have been enjoying more travel, especially in the Western U.S.

Are there any other thoughts you want to share with our readers and fellow alumni?

Never be afraid to contact your elected representatives and share your positive examples of all that the UW has done for you and the State of Wisconsin.

Wisconsin Agricultural and Life Sciences Alumni Association (WALSAA) is a 501(c)(3) charitable organization that supports the connection of students, faculty and alumni to the University of Wisconsin's College of Agricultural and Life Sciences, including the college's Farm and Industry Short Course.

Established in 1972, WALSAA has embarked on a remarkable journey of service and fellowship with alumni and friends of CALS. Noted by Roger Biddick, first WALSAA president at the organizations' first meeting, "As alumni we can act more effectively than any single group to rebuild the image of greatness that this college so justly deserves and at the same time enjoy the fellowship of working together."

Save time, sign up online!

WALSAA membership rates:

- Annual membership – $50.00
- Lifetime membership – Farm Technology Days Special – $200 from now until Aug. 26. If registering online, use the coupon code "walsaa." After that date, the membership rate reverts back to a one-time payment of $500.00 or installment payments of $105 per year for 5 years

Advantages of being a WALSAA member include WALSAA Express newsletter delivered several times per year and invitations to WALSAA events, such as the Football Fire-up, Farm Technology Days Picnic and Hit the Ice Hockey event. A WALSAA membership allows you to reconnect with CALS and give back to the college where it all began. Your membership dollars will be used to aid WALSAA as it carries out its efforts to award scholarships, fund CALS Ambassadors, support student leadership and recognize exceptional faculty.
